

Anti-Bullying and Harassment Policy

Policy Statement

For that reason, we have a responsibility to promote our students and staff's welfare whilst studying or working with us.

Bullying causes real distress. It can affect a person's health and development and, at the extreme, can cause significant harm. Everyone, regardless of age, disability, gender, race, religion or belief, sex or sexual orientation, have the right to equal protection from all types of harm or abuse, and everyone has a role to play in preventing all forms of bullying (including online) and putting a stop to bullying.

- All staff know the school policy on bullying and harassment, and follow it when it is reported

- Those involved are supported if an incident is reported, especially hate incidents and crimes.

- Transphobic: making someone feel unwelcome because of their perceived or actual gender identity.

Preventive measures

Encouraging a positive environment

The best way to make sure that bullying and harassment don't take place is to create and encourage a positive environment. That way, they are less likely to develop and are more easily detected. We aim to create an environment that encourages positive and respectful behaviour in and outside the classroom.

Diversity

Bullying and harassment are closely related to how we respect and recognise the value of diversity. The school is proactive about seeking opportunities to learn about and celebrate difference and welcoming new people to the school.

Equality

We abide by the provisions of the Equality Act 2010, as well as the laws of the United Kingdom regarding equality of opportunity and opposition to discrimination, inside and outside the classroom. Please see our Equality Policy for more information.

Prevent Duty

Prevent is the government's strategy to prevent and fight extremism. People are considered extremists when they propose using violence to achieve what they believe in. We, at International House Manchester, have a duty to try and reduce the likelihood of anyone, students, staff or homestays getting drawn into any form of extremism, e.g. religious extremism, homophobia, right-wing ideology. As part of the Prevent Duty, the school actively promotes core British values and all members of staff must exemplify them. These values are:

School policies as a deterrent

We have robust policies and procedures to deter any form of bullying or harassment. These are classed as misconduct in our student Code of Conduct and our staff Disciplinary and Grievance Policy which means that bullying and harassment will trigger the disciplinary procedure. This acts as a strong deterrent as it means that students might be expelled and staff might be dismissed if they are guilty of bullying or harassment. Students are informed of this before their course start and at induction. Staff are informed of this before their employment starts and during their induction.

Staff training

In order to make sure that staff are able to identify students at risk of being abused or drawn into terrorism, challenge extremist ideas and know how to refer students for further help, each member of staff in school and homestay hosting children must undertake basic safeguarding awareness training, as well as online Prevent training.

Reporting concerns

If a student is feeling that they are being bullied, or if anyone suspects that bullying is taking place, they are encouraged to discuss this with one of the people listed in the Key People section above.

Responding and dealing with bullying and harassment concerns

Bullying and harassment will be treated as abuse and any reports or suspicions of such behaviour will be responded and dealt with following the procedures described in the Child Protection and Safeguarding Vulnerable Adults Policies, as well as the Code of Conduct and Exclusion Policy and the Staff Disciplinary Policy.

It is important to note that International House Manchester will support and engage both the victim and alleged perpetrator throughout any investigation into allegations of bullying or harassment.
